EIGHT INJURED YESTERDAY IN ACCIDENT

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Plate glass windows are expensive targets for folks with BB guns or pistols. Somebody took a shot at the big window down at the Western Dark Fired Tobacco office and knocked a tiny hole in it.

When a BB hits a glass window it knocks a tiny hole in the frog, but takes out a piece the size of a dime on the inside. This does the window no good.

The city has worked out an excellent plan to give employment to a certain number of former police officers who have passed the retirement age in the department.

Three thus far are employed as radio operators. This not only gives employment to former officers, but also releases other officers for regular police duty.

The position of radio operator is not necessarily for former police officers, but they do fit the position well, since they are so familiar with the duties of the office.

The radio link has brought about a vast improvement in law enforcement and has resulted in not only good enforcement, but quick enforcement.

Officers separated by miles are still in close contact and can be in a suspect through this contact.

The other night a car thief was apprehended within forty minutes after a car was taken, because an alert police officer saw the act, suspected what was going on and used his radio to form a net. The car was taken in two minutes and the thief in forty minutes.

Murray and Calloway is well covered via radio with the sheriff's two cars, the two city police cruisers, college police cars, and the state police. All can keep in contact on one band or another.

The fire trucks are on radio too as well as the Murray Gas System trucks.

As you might well believe, the city and county is wrapped up in good radio contact.

Although the county courthouse offices will be closed from Monday noon and all day Tuesday, New Year's Day, the office of James Blalock will be open Monday afternoon to handle the drivers license business.

Rota-Patter, the weekly Rotary newsletter pointed out the other day that babies grow up to be people and therefore will need things. Du Pont economists figured that the 4,000,000 babies born in 1960 will use the following during their lifetime.

A billion pair of shoes.
25 billion pounds of beef.
63 million suits and dresses.
11 million cars.
91 billion gallons of gas.
6 1/2 million refrigerators.
A million new homes.
200 million tons of steel.
65 million tons of paper.
20 billion quarts of milk.

As Rota-Patter points out by 1975 the birth rate will be around 6,000,000 babies so you can imagine what the economy will be in for between then and the year 2,000.

CARS AND MORE CARS

NEW YORK (UPI) — U. S. automobile registrations will reach an estimated 65.6 million by the end of this year, 2.3 million more than last year, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. California leads all states in auto registrations with 7.2 million.

Ward & Elkins Named As New Tappan Dealer

Ward & Elkins will begin handling sales and service of Tappan free-standing gas and electric ranges beginning in January, it was announced today by Robert Wyman, general manager of the Murray Division.

The Tappan Company is extremely pleased to have Ward & Elkins as a Tappan dealer," Wyman said. "This means we now will have two retail outlets for Tappan products in Murray."

Steele & Albritten will continue to handle Tappan built-in ranges and other Tappan products such as refrigerators, dishwashers and range hoods.

Both Ward & Elkins and Steele & Albritten will maintain floor displays of Tappan ranges in their retail stores in Murray. Each dealer also provides expert installation and service.

The Tappan Company is one of the nation's leading producers of quality-built home appliances. The free-standing gas models are manufactured at the Murray plant.

An advertisement from the Tappan Company welcoming Ward & Elkins to the dealer sales organization appears in today's Ledger and Times on page three.

UN Jets Attack Congo Air Base In New Action

LEOPOLDBVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — United Nations jets attacked the main Katanga air base at Kolwezi today and inflicted severe damage in the second day of renewed Congo fighting which Britain demands be ended by an immediate ceasefire.

Ground fighting also was reported still going on in and around Elisabethville, capital of Katanga, as U. N. forces sought to restore order against rebellious Katangese gendarmes.

Casualties were reported high on both sides, and damage to Elisabethville was said to be extensive. Shortly after word was received of the U. N. aerial attack on Kolwezi, 150 miles west of Elisabethville, the British Foreign Office in London issued its call for a ceasefire.

"Sir Patrick Dean, British permanent representative at the United Nations, has been instructed to urge U. N. Secretary General U. Thant to take advantage of Katanga President Moise Tshombe's offer to send representatives to Leopoldville to arrange a fair division of revenues between Katanga and the central government."

"The first necessity is an immediate cease fire," a London Foreign Office spokesman said he did not know when Dean would be able to see Thant at U. N. headquarters in New York.

But the Foreign Office statement stressed British opposition to military attempts to settle the problem of restoring secessionist Katanga Province to the control of the central Congo government. "The British government has repeatedly expressed its opposition to the use of force to impose a political settlement on the Congo by force," the London statement said.

"This could only lead to prolonged and expensive occupation of that country by the United Nations." The U. N. troops, nevertheless, followed Thant's instructions of Friday to restore order in Elisabethville by all means possible after they had been fired on almost continuously by Katangese gendarmes who ignored cease-fire orders from Tshombe. Rain, Cold Hit Nation Once More

by United Press International

Rain fell along the east and west coasts today and a new cold wave plunged temperatures in the Midwest.

The start of the New Year's Day weekend brought rain from Florida to the Virginias and snow fell northward into New England.

Temperatures in much of the Midwest today were 30 to 40 degrees lower than Friday as the newest invasion of arctic air took hold.

Forecasters said the cold air mass could sweep all the way to the Gulf of Mexico during the weekend.

Temperatures dropped to "zero or below during the night across Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, and northern Minnesota and Wisconsin."

Livingston, Mont., Friday had wind gusts to 89 miles an hour before the cold air moved in, and Cutback, Mont., reported winds of 50 miles along with blinding snow.

The official low temperature Friday was 15 below zero at Craig, Colo. For the fourth straight day, Florida basked in 80 - degree warmth, with south Miami reporting an 83 reading.

Conference Hopes Of MSC Dealt Blow

Murray State College's conference hopes were dealt a severe blow over the holidays when 86 Jim Jennings suffered a badly sprained ankle.

Jennings, a junior from Dayton, Ohio was practicing basketball at his home when the injury was sustained. He reported back to Murray yesterday unable to practice and reportedly may be out of the Murray line-up indefinitely.

Murray which made a brilliant start this year against non-conference foes gets into the thick of the Ohio Valley conference race next week. The Racers open Wednesday night with Middle Tennessee at Murfreesboro and then return home for a game with visiting Tennessee Tech on Saturday.

Jennings, an All-American candidate, is the squad's leading scorer and rebounder.

Millions Of Americans On The Highways

by United Press International

Millions of Americans were on the highways this weekend for the start of the long New Year's holiday and the National Safety Council estimated an all-time traffic death record for this period would be set.

The council estimated that from 420 to 480 persons would die in traffic mishaps during the 102-hour holiday period from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Tuesday.

At 9:30 a.m. EST United Press International had counted 15 persons dead in traffic accidents. There were two deaths from miscellaneous causes for a holiday total of 17.

The previous death record for a four-day New Year's holiday was 409 in 1956. During last year's three-day holiday 337 persons were killed.

Safety officials hope bad weather in many sections of the nation would reduce the number of vehicles on the roads and streets and cause drivers to use caution. Rain and snow were predicted for both coasts and parts of the Midwest and Ohio and Mississippi Valleys.

Five Die Under Tons Of Red Mud

GREENBELT, Md. (UPI) — There was a rumble and a crash and then it was deadly quiet. Five men lay dead under tons of red mud. Eleven other persons were injured when one side of an excavation for a shopping center department store collapsed Friday. Crumbling in huge chunks, the red clay swept away a 16-foot high wooden form used for pouring the concrete walls and buried the workmen.

The search continued today in ankle-deep mud for other possible victims, but authorities said they believed all the victims had been accounted for.

John Floyd, 24, of Baltimore, was working on top of the wooden form when somebody cried "look out!"

"I never heard anything until it hit," Floyd said. "It came too fast to do anything. I rode it down and the next thing I knew I was in the bottom of a pier hole."

Another man said he was working in the pit when he heard a "rumble and a crash. I looked around and saw what happened. It was terrible."

He said the wood and steel reinforced forms collapsed as soon as the slide hit them and other workmen closer to the edge of the excavation had no time to run clear.

Maryland state investigators speculated that the city might have been weakened from the alternate freezing and thawing weather of the past few days.

Authorities identified the dead as Edgar Allen Poole, 57, of nearby Takoma Park, Md.; Lester Dowell, 33, Robert Washington, 37, Mel Smith, 23, and Rafter Hendrix Jr., 29, all of Baltimore.

Local People Back From Long Trip

State Health Department Was Busy During The Year 1962

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles reviewing the activities of key departments of state government during 1962. The pieces were written exclusively for United Press International by the department heads.

By RUSSELL E. TEAGUS, M.D.,
Commissioner of Health
Written for UPI

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — A number of new activities were begun and many existing programs in public health were expanded during 1962 in Kentucky.

Highlights included 94 county health departments that have met the requirements of the Public Health Foundation program, meaning a significant increase in public health services in these areas of the state.

There was significant expansion also in the programs of tuberculosis control, chronically ill and aged, plumbing, engineering, and food and drugs. Grants were made totaling approximately $1,800,000 to local communities for the improvement of sewage treatment works.

Our hospital and medical facilities activities under the Hill-Burton Act have completed or have under construction 21 hospital projects, including the University of Kentucky Medical Center during the year of a total cost of $52,229,288, and 16 county health centers at a cost of $1,187,549.

In addition, plans are being prepared and architects are working on drawings for 17 hospital projects at an estimated cost of $15,485,000, and six county health centers at an estimated cost of $690,000. These plans will materialize in the next year.

Other highlights include the establishment of a second Hearing Conservation Center at Elizabethtown, dental examinations for some 160,000 school children, administration of Sabin Oral Polio vaccine to approximately 1.5 million persons in the state, 35 Kentucky communities fluoridating water supplies, twice as many inspections of water supply plants as last year, and our state was included in the Cornell University study of automobile crash injuries.

The total Chronic Disease Control Program has been greatly expanded, and the nursing home staff training program and screening tests for glaucoma have received special emphasis. Thirty-six counties are now taking part in the home care program.

Other new activities of special interest include the establishment of three pediatric clinics in eastern Kentucky, the junior sanitarian program, which involved some 30,000 Kentucky school children in better sanitation practice, and a program for testing newborn babies for phenylketonuria (PKU).

I am most pleased to report that the 1962 General Assembly created history by passing a compulsory immunization law. They also passed 17 other bills affecting public health, including an act which established the Health and Welfare Agency of which the Department of Health is a member, and a bill removing the statutory salary limitations on physicians in public health work.

Through an agreement signed by the governor and the Atomic Energy Commission, Kentucky became the first state in the Union to take over licensing of all by-products, source materials, and special nuclear material in less than a critical mass. The Department of Health has since March, 1962 issued licenses under this authority to over 130 users of such material in the state.

This year the new medical care program became operational and approved over 700,000 statements for medical care services for needy Kentuckians totaling approximately $4,800,000. At the beginning of the new year qualified nursing homes will come under the medical care program.

With such progress in much of our work toward better health services for Kentuckians, there remain many fields in which increased efforts are to be made. Particular attention is being paid to the increased problem of air pollution throughout the state. Another area is venereal disease control, where last year the highest number of syphilis cases was reported since 1949.

We look forward to these and other problems in the new year as a challenge for better health for Kentuckians.

BATTERY BANDAGE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Electronics engineers at one of the major U. S. missile plants are still chuckling—but not the plant's medical staff or a certain patient. This patient was the missile age's first casualty (a scratched leg) to be bandaged with a dry cell battery.

According to a report on new ways of packaging power in the December issue of Popular Electronics magazine, the "battery bandage" is a revolutionary space age dry cell.

With its 2½ inch wide water-activated strips of silver chloride, magnesium and water-absorbent insulation rolled up like so much gauze, it somehow got into a medical kit. A nurse then bound up the man's injured leg with what amounted to 6 volts and $25.00 worth of electrical power. The patient was lucky he didn't get caught in the rain—he could've been shocked.

SPACE ON EARTH

GREENBELT, Md. (UPI) — At NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center here, a chunk of outer space is being brought down to earth. Two gigantic chambers, built by Minneapolis-Honeywell, will be able to simulate the cold, heat, light and vacuum of space so large spacecraft can be tested properly before flight.

HIGH JOURNAL

CONCORD, N. H. (UPI) — A daily newspaper, "Among the Mountains," was published at the summit of the 6,288-foot Mt. Washington in New Hampshire from 1877 to World War I.

The paper, founded by Henry M. Burt, carried news of the summit and surrounding communities in the White Mountains. John H. Bartlett, who later became governor of the state, served on the paper's reporting staff while working his way through college.

Clarinet Is Treacherous Instrument

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON 29P — The clarinet, as the old saying goes, is an ill wind that nobody blows good.

Even under the best of conditions, its musical values are marginal. In the hands of a young boy who is trying out for the school band, it can reduce a normal, healthy adult to a pitiful, quivering mass of ectoplasm.

The main trouble is that clarinets are notoriously unreliable. At times they can be downright treacherous.

I remember well the first clarinet I ever owned. I treated it as kindly as I could, shined it regularly, gave it a good home and all like that.

Yet every time that I took it out of its case in public, it would turn on me in a most vicious way.

It would be sailing along through "The Half and Quarter Note March," not losing my place more than once or twice, when suddenly it would emit a piercing screech, known among members of our band as "the cry of the wounded banshee."

Friends, if you have never heard the noise that a clarinet reed produces when the young musician's lip slips then your flesh has never really crawled and your teeth have never really been set on edge.

It is like no other sound heard on this earth, although a piece of chalk drawn the wrong way across a blackboard will give a close approximation.

The look of pain that it caused, to cross the face of our band director is embedded in my memory, but I did not fully understand the extent of his suffering until years later when a young member of my household began talking clarinet lessons.

I recite this now by way of emphasizing the justice that was done this week in an income tax ruling handed down by the Internal Revenue Service.

Prescribed Clarinet Lessons
It seems that an unidentified taxpayer had a son with a rather severe dental problem known as "malocclusion" or "buck teeth."

He took the lad to an orthodontist and was told that the condition might improve if the boy began taking clarinet lessons.

The taxpayer thereupon purchased a clarinet and enrolled his son in music class and listed the cost of both on his tax return as a medical expense.

After duly weighing the matter, the revenue service concluded that it was a legitimate deduction and let it stand.

I don't often lead the applause for the revenue service, but I think its decision in this case is to be highly commended.

A modest tax deduction can never begin to compensate for the horrors that poor father must be experiencing by living within earshot of a buck-toothed boy practicing on a clarinet.

Miss Jane Miller Honored Recently With Two Showers

Miss Jane Miller, bride-elect of Richard David Lamb, has been honored with two showers held recently.

The Cherry Corner Baptist Church was the scene of shower given by Mrs. W. T. Downs, Mrs. Estelle Ezell, and Mrs. Samuel Adams on Tuesday, December 11, at seven o'clock in the evening.

For the bridal event the honoree chose to wear a white wool sheath dress. She opened her many lovely gifts for the guests to view.

Games were played and refreshments were served by the hostesses. Twenty persons were present or sent gifts.

Mrs. Harry Haneline's home in Farmington was the scene of the first shower held on Tuesday, December 4, at seven o'clock in the evening. Twenty-five persons were present.

ST LOUIS 29P — A tomahawk that once belonged to Jimmie Boone Callaway, daughter of Daniel Boone, has been sent to the Daniel Boone Shrine Association for display in the old Boone home in St. Charles County.

Mrs. Vestal O. Hays of Ocala, Fla., donated the tomahawk. She is the great-great-granddaughter of Mrs. Callaway. The tomahawk is believed to be a memento of the capture of Jimmie Boone and Elizabeth and Frances Callaway by Indians July 14, 1776 at Fort Boonesborough, Ky. The women later were rescued.

STAMPS NOT NEW

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. 29P — Trading stamps are not new in the retail business, according to Harold Neigh, extension consumer economics specialist at Penn State University.

Trading stamps were used as early as the 1890s and have been in and out of the picture ever since, Neigh said. Of the 225 stamp companies in business in 1958 about 10 per cent had been operating 25 years or more. Over 60 per cent had been in business less than five years.

PLAYTIME

NEW YORK 29P — More "toys for adults" were sold this Christmas season than playthings for children, Revell, Inc., maker of hobbycrafts and toys, reported.

WHY NOW?—Foster child Diane, 4, is shown with the Paul family in Philadelphia, with whom she has lived for three years, and who the Childhood Bureau now says is too old to care for her. The parents, they mean. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Paul are 58 and 44. Their children are Joseph, 16, Marie, 13, and Johanna, 10. Diane must leave right after Christmas, it has been decreed.

MAULER—It's the first released view of a mockup of the U.S. Army's Mauler, a guided missile system designed to destroy tactical aircraft that bomb and strafe forward battle positions. The Mauler is a solid fuel missile, is radar guided, and the system is entirely self-contained on a tracked vehicle. Made by General Dynamics at Pomona, Calif.

OPTIMIST—The fire's pretty big, so that fellow with the bucket must be something of an optimist. It's a fuel boat fire on the Monongahela at Dravosburg, Pa. Fortunately, 5,000 gallons of diesel fuel did not ignite because it was below water level.

Venus May Not Have Magnetic Field, Report

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Information relayed from the Venus probe spacecraft Mariner 2 indicates that the planet may have no magnetic field, scientists reported Wednesday at the opening of the 129th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The Mariner 2 magnetometer's readings as it passed Venus at a distance of 21,534 miles on Dec. 14 revealed no trace of a magnetic field. The magnetometer was capable of measuring a magnetic field of more than five gamma, the report said. A gamma is the unit of measuring strength of magnetic fields.

The earth's magnetic field is about 30,000 gamma at the equator and 50,000 at its poles.

Scientists said, however, that Venus may have a weak magnetic field held too close to the planet by solar winds for it to have been measured by the spacecraft at a distance of more than 21,000 miles.

A weak magnetic field or the absence of one would mean a manned flight to Venus would not have to cope with its drag in approaching and landing, a scientist said. Manned flights do have to allow for earth's powerful magnetic field in getting away from their base.

Meanwhile, scientists calculate that Mariner 2 would pass closest to the sun tonight and continue on an elliptical orbit around it. The Caltech Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., reported Mariner 2 is still transmitting scientific data continuously to the earth despite fears that the intense heat would cause failure of its sensitive instruments.

GIRL MISSING

A New Thriller BY EDNA SHERRY

WHAT WAS THE FIRST thing Nick Archer saw when he stepped out of the door of his apartment in New York City? A girl, a young girl, a girl who looked like a girl who had been in the sun for a long time. She was wearing a red dress, a red dress that looked like it had been in the sun for a long time. She was looking at him with a look that said, "I've been waiting for you."

CHAPTER 3

NICK ARCHER was not three thousand miles away as Carlton (yes, suspected. He had left California in as great a hurry as Carlo but for different reasons. Nick Archer was one of the biggest bookmakers in New York but he was a good bit more than that. Before he was a bookmaker, he was a race horse, making him one of a race whose first allegiance and respect is to one's riders. He was also the product of the last century that included two World Wars, the phenomenon of Prohibition and the arrival of the Atomic Age.

His father, Nicola Archazzo, arrived in New York in 1907 and went to work for the cousin, a prosperous green-grocer in Greenwich Village. In two years Nicola saved enough to send for his bride in Naples. In three years Nick was born. Young Nick had a nappy, normal, uneventful childhood. He liked school, especially all forms of mathematics, and was graduated from high school at barely seventeen. By that time the Archazzos had added a cousin of Nicola's to the household. Anna, an unfortunate creature a few years older than Nick who was deaf and dumb.

After graduation Nick landed his first job as a bellboy in a big midtown commercial hotel. Just as he had liked none and school, he liked his job and did well at it.

It was the era of the "noble experiment" in which the greenest out-of-towner knew that the easiest way to a contraband bottle was a word to the bellboy. At the Cloud Hotel the method was for the bellboy to call a certain number and a fifth of the stuff—right off the boat!—appeared in ten minutes.

Nick had held his job for two years on the rainy June evening which proved to be the turning point in his life. He took a guest up to Room 412, carrying the man's suitcase and trench coat. He turned on the lights, opened the window and settled the suitcase on the luggage rack, finishing with his usual "Anything else, sir?"

There was. With a wide significant grin, the guest said: "Well—I wonder now—I'm a stranger here—my first trip to New York, and a friend of mine told me you boys might be able

ABBIE AN SLATS

"I'm sorry I did wrong," said Nick flushing. "I see now it was a crazy idea."

"No idea is crazy, son. I like boys who think. What are you making over at the Cloud?"

"Anywhere from thirty to thirty-five a week. Depends on the tips."

"Could you use a job that'd pay twice that?"

"Could I? Yes, sir!"

"Know anything about the horse game?"

"Not a thing," said Nick with a little regret. Surprisingly, Frankie smiled.

"I like truthful boys, too. You can learn all you need to know for this job in ten minutes. A telephone room. Sixteen phones with a man at each one. He takes bets, writes each one down on a slip of paper with the name of the bettor. In the corner of the room there's a man at a desk. A kid collects the slips as they are written and takes 'em over to the deskman. He files 'em for the cashier. That's your new job. Slip-by."

BOWL GAMES; NFL TITLE IS GRID FARE

Bowl Games Begin Today With Fans Promised A Rich Menu

by United Press International
College football offers four appetizers on its holiday menu today in the form of three all-star games and a clash between Penn State and Florida in the Gator Bowl.

The best of the all-star classics pits the East against the West in the 38th annual Shrine game at San Francisco. The North tackles the South in the 26th Blue-Gray clash at Montgomery, Ala., and the Major College All-Stars face the Small College All-Stars in the All-American Bowl at Tucson, Ariz.

These games will be followed by a meeting between West Texas State and Ohio University in the Sun Bowl on Monday. Then on Tuesday comes the main course—Southern California vs. Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl, Oklahoma vs. Alabama in the Orange Bowl, Arkansas vs. Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl, and Texas vs. LSU in the Cotton Bowl.

Penn State Favored
The favorites for today's games are Penn State, the West and the South—all by one touchdown margin. No odds were quoted on the All-American Bowl but the Major College Stars, who have won all four previous games, boast such standouts as halfback Eldon Fortie of Brigham Young, center Dave Gehman of Michigan State and All-American tackle Bobby Bell of Minnesota.

Three of today's games will be televised nationally—the Gator Bowl, starting at 2 p.m. EST, by CBS; the Blue-Gray at 2 p.m. EST by NBC, and the East-West at 4:30 p.m. EST, also by NBC.

Green Bay And New York Will Meet Tomorrow For Grid Crown

By NORMAN MILLER

United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Coach Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers pronounced Paul Hornung in "perfect" condition today and then deepened the mystery surrounding his star halfback by refusing to say whether he would start Sunday against the New York Giants.

Lombardi's uncertainty—or evasiveness—about Hornung, who scored a record 19 points in last year's 37-0 Packers rout at Green Bay, left observers somewhat baffled on the eve of the National Football League championship game.

"How's Hornung?" was the first question shot at Lombardi Friday as he was collared for a news conference a few hours after his Packers had arrived by plane from Green Bay.

"Perfect," Lombardi replied with a big smile.

Uncertain About Starter
But then, when he was asked whether Hornung would start on Sunday, the Packers coach answered: "I'll know better at game time."

Why the uncertainty? "Well, the other boy (Tom Moore) has been playing most of the season and doing a good job."

Will it depend on the condition of the field?

"No, it will depend upon how I feel and how he (Hornung) feels just before game time."

Hornung, player-of-the-year in the NFL last year, has missed more than half of the present season because of a knee injury. Moore has done an excellent job replacing him.

A crowd of 50,000 was expected at Jacksonville, Fla., to watch Penn State defend its Gator Bowl title. The Nittany Lions blanked Georgia Tech there last year and then lost only to Army in 10 games this season to emerge as the East's top team.

Quarterback Pete Liske, who completed 91 of 162 passes for 1,037 yards this year, will direct Penn State's attack. He will be opposed by Tom Shannon, the most accurate passer in Florida history. Only a sophomore, Shannon connected on 46 of 100 passes during the regular season.

Could Become Passing Duel
The East-West game also could develop into an interesting passing duel. Sonny Gibbs, the 6-7 giant from Texas Christian, is slated to handle most of the West's signal-calling and Notre Dame's Doyle Lamonica will be at the helm for the East. Both like to throw the ball.

Gibbs' sidekicks in the West backfield include Bill Thornton of Nebraska, Ronnie Goodwin of Baylor, Kermit Alexander of UCLA, and Charlie Mitchell of Washington. Larry Ferguson of Iowa, Purdue's Roy Walker and George Saines of Michigan State will line up with Lamonica in the East backfield.

In the Blue-Gray game, Virginia's Gary Chozzo will direct the rebel attack. Chozzo set six passing records at Virginia, where he clicked on 96 of 181 aerials for 1,116 yards this year. The North's big gun is Dave Hoppman of Iowa State, who has passed and galloped for more than 4,000 yards during his college career.

While Lombardi left his listeners mildly bewildered, there were no such doubts about the sentiments of chipper Al Sherman of the Giants.

Giants In Good Shape

After putting the Giants through a 45-minute morning workout at Yankee Stadium, Sherman said his team is in such good shape that "I don't have an alibi to rest on." The Giants all were healthy and Sherman reiterated that his team was in much better condition, physically and mentally, than prior to the 1961 game in Green Bay.

Both teams were scheduled to go through light workouts today at the stadium, the Packers in the morning and the Giants in the afternoon.

Sherman is hoping for a dry field for the title game and at first it was thought his prayers would be answered. However, a revised forecast predicted a chance of snow turning to rain late tonight with gradual clearing Sunday. The temperature at game time is expected to be in the mid-30s.

When Lombardi was asked whether he preferred a dry or a wet field, he replied: "I don't care. I just hope it's as good as our field last year."

PAPER USE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States uses paper products at the rate of 440 pounds per capita per year compared with the world average of 57 pounds, according to American Forest Products Industries.

Lakers, Falcons Meet Tonight In Tourney Finals

The Calloway County Lakers dropped Sedalia 63-47 in semi-final action last night to move into the championship game of the Calloway Invitational Tournament with Hickman County.

Hickman romped away in the final quarter to douse Mayfield 52-28 in the top bracket semi-final game last night. Mayfield will meet Sedalia in a consolation match at seven o'clock tonight to be followed by the championship contest.

The Lakers of Coach Howie Crittenden jumped to an early 6-0 advantage and kept moving ahead to rack up a 16-7 lead in the first quarter as a cold Sedalia went four and a half minutes without scoring.

But the Lions came to life quickly in the second quarter and poured in eight straight points to trail by only one, 16-16, with 5:37 remaining in the period.

Larry Watson then produced two charity tosses and field goal for the Lakers and Calloway pulled out to a 27-20 margin at half-time.

The Lakers put on a drive of their own as the third quarter got underway and buried the hapless Lions with a 38-20 advantage on 11 consecutive points. Sedalia was never able to recover from the scoreless four minutes in the third period and were on the short end of a 41-26 third quarter score.

Coach Ken Wray's Lions never got closer than 11 points when Dennis Glisson cut the gap to 35-46 midway in the period. Calloway's big dependable pivot man then picked up a three-point shot and Riley and Housden added field goals to spoil any Lion hopes of a come-back.

Mickey Bogges who turned in a good floor game led the Lakers scoring with 15 points. Whitlow led Calloway's domination of the boards with 16 rebounds and chipped in with 13 points. Sammy Housden scored 14 for Calloway. Mullins and Crittenden scored 10 each for the Lakers.

A defensive first half saw a close battle between Hickman County and Mayfield. The Falcons and the Cardinals were tied at the end of the first two quarters, 6-6, and 14-14.

Hickman then out-scored the Cardinals 14-6 to grasp a 28-20 advantage going into the last quarter of play.

Mayfield simply could not find the range in the last frame missing shot after shot, many of them close-in. The Cardinals trailed by 15 points, 38-24, with 3:16 remaining and managed to score only four additional points before the contest came to a close.

Hickman County hit 16 of 20 free throw attempts with Gary Myers accounting for 10 of them. Myers was easily the top scorer for the night with 24 points. Morris paced Mayfield with 11.
